NOVEL GRAPHICS / 'ARN', FRANCE

Gaul encompassing

Five years ago, photographers Eric Tabuchi and Nelly Monnier set out to document the architecture and landscapes of the 450 natural regions that make up French territory. The initial results of the project can now be found in a smart 384-page publication: L'Atlas des Régions Naturelles Vol. 1.

Co-published by Poursuite and Gwinzegal, the book features Tabuchi and Monnier's images of homes, shops, churches and villages in regions such as Artois, Morvan and Béarn. The photographs do the talking – the only text is the location names – and a fold-out map serving as an index is slipped into the back cover. It leaves readers inspired and perfectly primes them to visit the spots themselves.
